ROBERT R. MOTTA FOR PRESIDENT 2028

America Really First • One Term. Get It Done. • VoteMotta2028.com

From the Candidate

A presidency should have a public finish line.

I am running for President to serve for one term, set measurable goals and return power to citizens instead of building a permanent political career. The Motta Review is designed as a recurring voter record: what the campaign proposes, what sources support the discussion, what media is being shared, what remains unproven and what should happen next.

The standard is simple: publish the goal, show the timetable, report progress and admit what has not been completed.

Ten Measurable Priorities

1. Protect Social Security and strengthen practical support for caregivers.
2. Put veterans first: homelessness, toxic exposure, records, caregivers and accountability.
3. Modernize the electric grid, water systems, roads and domestic manufacturing.
4. Audit government spending and publish public progress dashboards.
5. Protect whistleblowers, preserve evidence and defend due process.
6. Pursue peace through strength and publish honest war-cost accounting.
7. Advance responsible AI, science, manufacturing and independent invention.
8. Review UAP records lawfully and publish a phased disclosure schedule.
9. Use simple bills, transparent budgets and measurable executive priorities.
10. Report results to voters in every new issue of The Motta Review.

A serious one-term promise is not a guarantee that every goal will be completed. It is a promise to publish the goals, assign responsibility, show deadlines and report progress in public.

Families, Workers, Seniors and Caregivers

Government should be judged by whether ordinary people can afford safe housing, reliable utilities, healthcare, transportation and a future for their children. The campaign supports protecting Social Security, practical caregiver assistance, transparent prices and citizen-first budgeting.

The campaign is independent. The goal is not to copy the left or the right, but to ask a direct question: does the policy measurably improve life for citizens while respecting constitutional rights and responsible budgets?

Protect Social Security, veterans benefits and earned retirement security.	Support Parents, caregivers, children, disabled citizens and working families.
Measure Utility reliability, price transparency and access to essential services.	Report Results, costs, delays and contractor performance in plain language.

Lifetime Responsibility for Service

No veteran should be left unsheltered. The country must improve exposure records, caregiver support, mental-health access, benefit navigation and accountability when agencies lose or delay evidence.

Area 51 and other classified-site workers deserve a lawful health-record review. Classification should not become a permanent barrier that forces veterans to prove facts the government itself restricted.

MEASURABLE FIRST-TERM DASHBOARD

- Unsheltered veteran count and verified housing placements
- Average time for exposure-record requests
- Caregiver application and appeal times
- Backlog and error rates for disability claims
- Suicide-prevention access and follow-up measures
- Independent review of classified-site health claims

Grid, Water, Roads and Resilience

Every outage acts like a hidden tax. Families lose food, businesses lose sales, medical devices lose reliability and communities lose confidence. The one-term mission calls for a national reliability dashboard and faster modernization of aging systems.

Public works should show the public five things: the promised outcome, total cost, contractor, deadline and current status. Projects that slip should display why.

GRID Reliability, storage, transmission, cyber resilience and local generation.	WATER Lead, contamination, treatment, aging pipes and transparent testing.
ROADS Repair, bridges, freight efficiency and safe local mobility.	MADE IN AMERICA Manufacturing capacity, skilled labor and inventor-to-factory pathways.

Transparency, Due Process and Whistleblowers

Trust cannot be restored through slogans. Records must be preserved, conflicts disclosed, inspectors general protected and allegations separated from proven findings.

The Motta Review uses an editorial source ladder:

1. Confirmed record - An official document, court filing, law, audited dataset or authenticated primary source.
2. Official statement - A named agency, official or organization making a attributable statement.
3. Sworn testimony - Testimony that still may be disputed or incomplete.
4. Unresolved report - A documented claim that has not been proven or disproven.
5. Candidate opinion - A political conclusion or proposal stated as opinion.
6. Speculation - A theory that must never be presented as established fact.

AI, Inventors and Independent Science

America should make it easier for inventors and small research teams to test ideas, find manufacturing partners and publish reproducible results. Government can support open challenges, test facilities, small grants, procurement pathways and public results without deciding truth by political popularity.

The editorial rule is equally important: independent ideas deserve a fair hearing, but extraordinary claims still require transparent methods, measurements and repeatable evidence.

A useful public debate asks:

- What exactly is being claimed?
- What measurement would confirm or falsify it?
- Can another team reproduce the result?
- What established model does it challenge?
- Are the sources primary, complete and current?
- What is observation, and what is interpretation?

Ken Wheeler / Theoria Apophasis

Ken Wheeler is a prolific independent creator whose channel covers photography, ancient languages, metaphysics, magnetism, dielectricity and unconventional interpretations of field theory.

The Motta Review will feature his work as part of a broader debate about how independent ideas should be examined. His scientific claims are not presented here as established consensus. A future issue is reserved for a source-by-source review using the videos and transcripts supplied by the campaign, alongside mainstream physics references and clearly labeled criticism.

Editorial caution: a large audience or confident presentation is not a substitute for reproducible evidence. Criticism should also address the strongest version of the claim rather than ridicule the creator.
